

“Another Day, Another Religion” equals raw energy, , aggression, melody and diversity. The debut-album of New Pokerface saw daylight on July 4th 2008. The album, recorded at Split Second Sound Studios (Textures, Malkovich), contains 14 songs which will grab you by the throat and won’t let go!

Formed in 2006, New Pokerface; Tim Klaassen (guitar & vocals), Erik Hermeler (bass & vocals) and drummer Thomas Frankhuijzen, decided to make fast, powerful but yet melodic punkrock.

Writing good lyrics should be just as important as writing good music. The band wanted to spread a message; to bring out the best in yourself, without depending on other people, about breaking boundaries that keep you down.

Soon the band decided it was time to bring their music out to the people. They joined forces with Split Second Sound Studio’s and their debut EP 'Act The Animal' was released at the end of 2006. 'Act The Animal' got positive reviews in different magazines, like Up-Magazine, Roar Ezine and Live-XS. Within two months the first printing was sold out and a second printing was necessary to meet demands.

During 2007 over 40 shows were played, getting good reviews everywhere. The band proved that they can meet expectations. It was clear the band is even more energetic live than on CD. Along with more shows and good reviews came bigger shows. New Pokerface shared the stage with bands like The Gaslight Anthem, The Undeclinables, and Peter Pan Speedrock.

In 2008 the band decided they were ready to release their first full-length album. In march they started recordings and again they hooked up with Split Second Sound Studios.

Finally on July 4th “Another Day, Another Religion” was released. New Pokerface now is ready to hit the road again and trash the stages!
